

My name is Nick Christian, and I'm running for Dodge County Supervisor because Ashippun isn't just where I live, it's where my family and I have built our life. Like so many families here, we chose Ashippun for its open land, strong sense of community, and rural way of life. I'm committed to making sure those values are protected and carried forward for the next generation.

I bring a business-minded approach to leadership, one that values common sense, fiscal responsibility, and long-term planning. I understand that every decision made at the county level has a real impact on the people who live and work here. That's why I believe in thoughtful, practical solutions that balance responsible growth with preserving what makes our community special.

I'm running to represent the people of Ashippun not special interests or outside developers, but the residents, families, and farmers who are invested in this community every day. I believe strong leadership means listening, being accountable, and making decisions with the best interests of our community in mind.

Ashippun's rural character is what makes it such a great place to call home, and it's worth protecting. At the same time, I recognize that growth is necessary for long-term sustainability. My focus is on ensuring that growth is well-planned, measured, and aligned with our community's values preserving farmland, protecting open spaces, and maintaining the small-town character that defines Ashippun.

My goal is simple: to provide steady, responsible leadership that keeps Ashippun a place we're proud to call home today and for generations to come.
